

What we do and how we do it

Contributed by admin
Monday, 15 October 2007
Last Updated Friday, 11 January 2008

A dynamic organisation with low overheads, able to provide business skills, training and advice, website management and design capabilities, ability to communicate in three languages: private, public and voluntary; In-depth knowledge of the Creative sector coupled with the independence of a small, yet cohesive organisation. This independence will see the Agency develop as a self-contained yet well networked unit, and allow its identity to be unique, rather than a component; A strong network of advisors and supporters who can be drawn on to assist the delivery of the project; Experience of setting up several major support services for the Creative Industries. This experience brings with it knowledge of how to render an effective service, as well as working knowledge of supporting and communicating with practitioners across the creative spectrum